Organization Announcement

MARSHALL SPACE FLIGHT CENTER ■ HUNTSVILLE, ALABAMA

ADJUSTMENT TO MARSHALL ORGANIZATION, ANNOUNCEMENT #5

The Marshall Center's new basic organization has been approved by Dr. T. O. Paine, Acting NASA Administrator. As you know, we have proceeded with a number of the changes and key appointments on a temporary basis, pending formal approval. We can now proceed toward complete implementation of the reorganization, in accordance with the attached MSFC Organization Chart.

These organization changes resulted from a great deal of study and deliberation by MSFC management, as well as consultation with the Office of Manned Space Flight and cognizant elements at NASA Headquarters. As we proceed to implement the changes and make key individual assignments, we will continue to exercise such a deliberate approach. As significant actions are taken and key assignments determined, we will continue to make them known to you.

I am sure you are aware of the many administrative actions required to implement the major changes represented in the new chart. We plan to hold this "transition time" to a minimum. The offices responsible for coordinating and carrying out such actions will be working to complete them in the shortest time consistent with good management practice. The efficient, speedy accomplishment of these implementing actions depends in large measure on healthy cooperation between all Center elements.

I want to emphasize that Center management fully recognizes the outstanding talents and skills of our employees at all levels. I am confident that our new organizational posture will enable us to better utilize the talents of all employees, and to respond vigorously to the challenges of the future.
